PROTECTION MONITORING

Protection monitoring is the systematic and regular collection, verification and analysis of information over an extended period of time, in order to identify violations of rights and protection risks for populations of concern, facilitate the prevention of these violations and risks, and inform effective responses. It means collecting primary and/or secondary data and analyzing them over time to identify trends in the needs expressed and risks faced by the populations of concern.

Protection monitoring is an important tool for both interventions and advocacy. Collecting and sharing high quality information on these issues is essential to making sure that IRC is able to respond to these needs through programming, referrals and advocacy activities.

As part of its dedicated efforts to enhance its protection monitoring activities, IRC Italy produces quarterly protection monitoring reports. These reports are a reflection of IRC Italy's commitment to systematically oversee and assess the protection conditions of individuals encountered and supported. They capture the profiles, vulnerabilities, protection risks, and needs of IRC clients in Trieste and the rest of Italy, together with significant migration-related context updates covering the whole country. They provide numbers and insights on clients who use IRC's digital information service, Refugee.Info, individuals arriving in Trieste via the Balkan Route.

BALKAN ROUTE

The Western Balkan Route is one of the main migratory pathways via land. It typically involves crossing multiple countries in the Balkans, often starting from Turkey and moving through countries such as Bulgaria, Greece, North Macedonia, Serbia, and others in the region. Trieste, despite being located by the sea, is one of the main entry points in Italy for people arriving from the Balkan Route.

EASTERN MEDITERRANEAN ROUTE

This route leads from Greece either overland through Albania and the Balkans or directly by sea to Italy, forming a key link for migration from the Middle East and South Asia to Europe.

POLITICAL CONTEXT

In the final quarter of 2025, the Italian government's efforts continued to focus on externalizing migration control while positioning Italy as a key testing ground for forthcoming EU policies.

One year into the implementation of the Italy–Albania deal, Italy reaffirmed its commitment to this controversial arrangement, despite limited results and sustained legal obstacles. The Albania-based detention centres have been operational since 14 October 2024, marked by the transfer of the first asylum seekers. Yet by July 2025, only 111 people had passed through the facilities, as Italian courts repeatedly halted the use of the centers and referred key legal questions to the Court of Justice of the European Union. Bilateral cooperation between Rome and Tirana was further consolidated on November 14, two years after the original deal was signed, when Italy and Albania concluded a new, wide-ranging agreement during the Italy–Albania Summit in Rome. The agreement expands collaboration beyond migration management to include infrastructure, defense and security, energy, the environment, health, innovation, and training.

At the same time, Italy played a prominent role in testing key components of the forthcoming EU Pact on Migration and Asylum. Between October 13 and 27, Frontex, the EU Agency for Asylum (EUAA), and Europol, in cooperation with Italian authorities, conducted a pilot of the new EU Screening Regulation in Lampedusa. The two-week trial involved 240 newly arrived people and aimed to assess the practical application of the Screening Toolbox developed jointly by Frontex and the EUAA. According to Frontex, the pilot tested the system under real operational pressure, strengthened inter-agency cooperation, and helped identify risks and best practices ahead of the Pact's entry into force in June 2026.

Italy's central role in Mediterranean migration dynamics was also formally acknowledged at the EU level. In its first Annual Asylum and Migration Report, published on November 11, the European Commission classified Italy as being under “migratory pressure” due to a disproportionate number of arrivals following search and rescue operations at sea. Alongside Greece, Cyprus, and Spain, Italy will therefore be eligible to access the EU's Solidarity Pool once the EU Pact on Migration and Asylum enters into force.

On November 2, the Italy–Libya Memorandum of Understanding was automatically renewed for another three years, as neither party moved to revoke or amend the agreement. On the basis of the MoU, signed in 2017, Italy has been providing material and technical support to the Libyan Coast Guard.

TWO-WAY COMMUNICATION

1,366
Unique clients provided with individualized support¹
(i.e., two-way communication with a moderator)

Between October - December 2025, two-way communication was primarily driven by requests related to asylum procedures, border and travel movements, documentation, work and employment, and permits of stay. As shown in the chart, asylum remained the most frequent topic overall but declined from 17% (July–September 2025) to 14% between October–December 2025. Despite this decrease, users continued to report significant protection risks linked to complex and fragmented administrative procedures, including prolonged delays at Questura offices in registering asylum applications (C3) and issuing or renewing residence permits.

At the same time, border and travel-related requests doubled (from 6% to 12%), reflecting a growing number of messages from third countries and other EU Member States seeking information on legal entry options, Dublin procedures (the EU rules determining which Member State is responsible for examining an asylum application), and the possibility of applying for international protection from abroad. Requests concerning work and employment also rose sharply (from 6% to 11%), alongside more moderate increases in documentation-related enquiries (from 7% to 9%) -mainly administrative support requests concerning various types of documents such as identity cards, travel documents and transport tickets- and permits of stay (from 6% to 7%). This trend aligns with increased enquiries related to the Decreto Flussi and residence permit receipts, with users seeking clarification on their rights in relation to work, services and mobility as further detailed below.

Top two-way communication topics⁴

Client protection concerns³

DECRETO FLUSSI AND RISK OF EXPLOITATION

During the quarter, Refugee.Info received many requests from people outside Italy, mainly from Algeria, Sudan, Tunisia, Lebanon, Egypt, Pakistan and Iran. Most concerned the Decreto Flussi, with frequent reports of alleged fraud, paid intermediaries and falsified documents, highlighting risks of exploitation linked to limited safe pathways. Other users sought updates on resettlement, humanitarian corridors, or guidance on Dublin procedures and access to asylum in Italy, pointing to persistent protection gaps.

ASYLUM, RECEPTION AND DOCUMENTS

Users consistently reported prolonged delays in accessing Questura to register asylum applications or renew residence permits, often without the possibility of securing appointments in the absence of legal support. Many reported being unable to formally apply for asylum for months, with direct consequences for access to reception, resulting in homelessness or reliance on emergency shelters. Requests for support to access both institutional reception and emergency accommodation were recurrent. The lack of valid identity documents frequently led to exclusion from basic services, including healthcare, housing, employment and banking.

ECONOMIC HARDSHIP AND LABOUR EXPLOITATION

Users increasingly sought information and support to find employment or regularise informal work arrangements. Moderators collected recurring reports of unpaid wages, exploitative conditions and irregular labour, particularly in domestic work and agriculture. Requests for guidance on work permits, social assistance and eligibility for welfare benefits also increased.

This snapshot presents findings from a quarterly analysis of data collected from IRC's digital information service, Refugee.Info (RI), which provides refugees and migrants with multilingual, accessible, actionable and accurate information nationwide through instant messaging apps, social media and a website.

In 2025, the IRC Italy programme in Trieste, at the Italian–Slovenian border, reached 9,761 newly arrived people, representing a 27% decrease compared to 2024 (13,460).

Methodological note: annual figures are likely underestimated compared to previous years due to a reduced data collection capacity throughout July and August 2025.

In the last quarter of 2025, 3,263 people were reached, marking a 7% increase compared to the same period in 2024 (3,036) and a 22% increase compared to the previous quarter (Jul-Sep 2025) (2,669).

Afghanistan remained the most represented nationality, consistently accounting for 44% of individuals reached.

The majority of people met reported being in transit to other countries (43%).

Between October and December 2025, the protection situation in Trieste remained critical, further confirming the structural inadequacy of institutional migration management highlighted in recent years. Despite the eviction carried out on October 1, hundreds of newly arrived migrants and asylum seekers continued to seek shelter in the Old Port area.

A further eviction was carried out on December 3, resulting in the transfer of 155 individuals to other regions, once again without prior coordination with civil society actors operating on the ground. This represented the fifth eviction within a year and a half and consolidated evictions as a de facto standard operating procedure adopted by the Prefecture to manage migration in the city.

One of the primary drivers of the continued presence of informal settlements in Trieste remains the systematic obstruction of access to the asylum procedure. As documented in the report Accesso Negato – Trieste 2025 (Denied Access), published by IRC and local partners on December 17, 2025, newly arrived asylum seekers continue to face unlawful and discriminatory practices at Trieste's Questura. These include repeated refusals to register asylum applications, the arbitrary request for documentation not foreseen by law, delayed or denied appointments, and the informal rejection of applicants previously fingerprinted in other EU Member States without an individual assessment. As a result, people are left on average up to three weeks sleeping rough before being able to formalize their asylum claims, directly contributing to homelessness and protection risks. In response to these barriers, dozens of individuals moved to Gorizia province to seek access to the asylum procedure. Although their applications were registered there, they remained without access to reception, forcing many to continue sleeping rough in Trieste. This situation exposed serious gaps in inter-provincial coordination and generated tensions between the municipalities of Trieste and Gorizia, highlighting the absence of a coherent regional approach to asylum reception and allocation.

Accesso Negato – Trieste 2025 further documents cases of individuals who were issued expulsion orders despite having clearly expressed their intention to seek asylum. Several of these cases were challenged by legal actors before domestic courts, which ordered the Questura to accept the asylum applications, reaffirming the primacy of the right to seek asylum and the obligation of authorities to register asylum applications without delay. In mid-December, IRC Italy and local partners formally presented the findings of the report to the Head of the Questura and the Immigration Office, calling for an immediate halt to unlawful practices and the establishment of a direct referral channel for individuals with specific vulnerabilities. While the meeting represented an important occasion to discuss the concerns raised by civil society organizations, concrete changes in practices had yet to be observed by the end of the reporting period.

With respect to reception, a partial improvement was recorded in December, when the Campo Sacro reception facility expanded its capacity from 75 to 140 places and transfers from Trieste to other regions became more regular.

While these measures represent a step forward, they remain insufficient to address the scale and structural nature of protection gaps at the border, particularly in the absence of guaranteed and immediate access to asylum procedures. Without a comprehensive, rights-based approach that links reception capacity, asylum registration, and coordination with civil society, the cycle of homelessness and emergency responses in Trieste is likely to persist, with negative consequences for both affected individuals and the wider community. During the quarter, at least four migrants lost their lives in the Friuli Venezia Giulia region while living in homelessness, highlighting the severe consequences of institutional abandonment and the acute risks faced by individuals excluded from reception, especially during winter months, such as exposure to cold, declining physical and mental health, and the lack of basic protections.

This snapshot depicts the numbers of newcomers from the Balkan Route encountered by International Rescue Committee Italy and Diaconia Valdese in the Trieste central station area during the reporting period. The data was gathered through individual and group interviews with people supported with legal orientation and first aid. The monitoring activity is carried out during the entire daytime, and partially in the evening, of every weekday of the year, and in the evening on weekends and holidays. Please note that these figures refer only to newly arrived individuals physically encountered and supported by IRC and Diaconia and might not comprehensively depict the actual numbers of individuals arriving in and moving through Trieste.

In recent months, IRC Italy has strengthened its efforts to systematically and regularly monitor the protection situation of its clients. Monitoring activities aim at identifying shifts in the protection landscape by assessing rights violations, protection risks faced by the affected population, and the information and services needs of people supported. Kindly note that IRC Italy's monitoring efforts do not cover the entire country, rather are limited to reporting observations made and clients reached through IRC programs. The introduction and political context are the only exceptions, as they are based on secondary data.

Monitoring data is collected using the following methods:

- Protection at the Borders (Trieste): the city of Trieste is one of the main entry points in Italy for people traveling through the Balkan Route. The team, composed of the Area Manager and three field protection assistants, gathers client-related data (e.g. gender, age, nationality, vulnerabilities, pushbacks) while disseminating information and Non-Food Items. All data collected through individual and group interviews is anonymous and documented in a spreadsheet connected to a Dashboard.
- Refugee.Info (RI): Refugee.Info is IRC's digital information service which provides refugees and migrants with multilingual, accessible, actionable and accurate information nationwide through instant messaging apps, social media and a website. The RI team tracks the number of messages that are sent to and received by moderators per topic, by tagging messages with "labels". These labels sort the messages into categories. The team also uses labels for clients' ages and genders, and labels indicating if any messages were sent to/from Ukrainian clients or Afghan clients.
- Since November 2022, moderators of Refugee.Info and field staff in Trieste have been asked to complete a monthly qualitative questionnaire which serves as an observation tool. The answers to this questionnaire allow IRC staff to monitor changes in the most prevalent migrant profiles and demographics, the most frequently asked questions and requested services, barriers to accessing services, and discriminatory practices faced by clients.

The results of these monitoring activities are presented in this Protection Monitoring Report, which is produced on a quarterly basis. The aim of the report is to provide a summary of the current protection context, highlight developments over the reporting period in terms of demographics, protection concerns and information and services needs, and highlight any trends. It consists of an introduction with information on the current political context, as well as national data on migration flows and the reception system in Italy, followed by two snapshots on Trieste (People arriving via land from the Balkan Route in Trieste) and Refugee.Info project.

A glossary of Italian context-specific terms along with their definitions is presented at end of the report.

The expression of willingness to apply for asylum (or international protection) should not be confused with the formalization of the relevant application, which happens even weeks after the expression of willingness to seek asylum - although it must take place within a short time frame according to the provisions of the current legislation (Legislative Decree 25/2008). From a procedural point of view, the expression of willingness is filed through an “invitation” issued by the territorially competent police headquarters or border police to formalize the application for international protection on the indicated date.
